Playing Substitute

T20 Fantasy Cricket Points System

Concussion, X-Factor, or Impact Player	+4

Rules about substitutes

- All the X-Factor substitutes will get 4 points for being announced and score points for any contributions they make as per our Fantasy Point System.
- Concussion & COVID-19 Substitutes, if permitted as per the applicable rules and regulations of the tournament, will be awarded 4 points for making an appearance (only for T20s, ODs, Tests, T10s and The Hundred) and will be awarded points for all the contributions they make as per the Fantasy Point System.
- Substitutes other than Concussion substitutes, COVID-19, or X-Factor substitutes will not be awarded points for any contribution they make.
- If a player gets replaced by an X-Factor substitute in the Big Bash League but later comes back on the field, he will get points for his contributions. However, if a player, who was not a part of the announced lineups, comes to the field as a substitute, he will not get points for any of his contributions (except Concussion and COVID-19 substitutes).
- A player who has been transferred from one team to the other might still be available for selection for his older team until the next scheduled team update on Dream11. However, no points will be attributed to the player in such a situation.
- If a player is announced in the starting eleven of a team but later is unable to start the match, they will not score any points. However, the player who plays as the replacement will earn points for the match (including starting points).
- No points will be awarded for any actions during a Super Over or a Super Five.
- No further adjustments will be made to the points awarded once a match has been marked as completed and winners have been declared. Points awarded for a LIVE game will be subject to change only when the match status is “In Progress” or “In Review”.
- More than 11 players from either team can play in Other OD/Other T20/Other Test matches.
- There are no negative points for low Strike Rates in Test matches.
- No points will be awarded for Strike, economy, or Maidens in ‘The Hundred’.
